DR. SUN AGAIN COMING INTO POWER, PEKING IS INFORMED

Gen. Chen Losing Support, Telegrams Say

CANTON UNEASY

Fighting Expected To Resume In Near Future

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, July 7.—Telegrams from Canton state that Dr. Sun Yat-sen is apparently regaining power whereas General Chen Chiung-ming is losing support. General Chen is said to be endeavoring to make General Yeh Chuan the scapegoat by placing on him the onus of the rising against Dr. Sun.

General Chen has left Waichow and is proceeding to Sheklung in order to intercept General Hsu Chung-chih's forces, which are on their way to Canton. There is general unrest at Canton and fighting is expected soon.

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 7.—The Times in a leading article today dwells on the significance of the report that the Provisional Assembly of Kwangtung has propsed the abolition of the Canton Government in favor of the Central Government. It says that Kwangtung is the cradle of Revolutionary China and if the Assembly of that Province demands the recognition of the Central Government, it is justifiable to assume that the cause of unification is three-fourths won whatever the extremist adherents of Dr. Sun Yat-sen may say or do. It may be the final blow to the hopes of that misguided man, the article continues, to ignore his pretensions and enter into direct relations with President Li Yuan-hung. Absolute assurance that the members of the Canton Government are willing to proceed to Peking as a body is still wanting but the action of the Assembly will surely determine the attitude of the majority and eventually assure the presence at Peking of a sufficient number to form a Parliamentary quorum.

SINO-AMERICAN ENTENTE NEVER BETTER, SAYS SZE

Minister Welcomed To London After 16 Months In U. S.

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 7.—Mr. Chu Chao-hsin, the Chinese Charge d'Affaires in London, presiding at the official welcome of the Chinese Legation to Mr. Alfred Sze on his return from Washington, paid a tribute to Mr. Sze's distinguished services during his six years in London, to which could be ascribed much of the present good understanding and close relationship between Britain and China.

Mr. Sze, in the course of his reply declared that Sino-American relations were never so friendly as at present. He had been greatly impressed during his sixteen months sojourn in America with the universal desire of Americans to know the Chinese. There were at present over 2,500 Chinese students in American Universities and colleges. The number was larger than in England but he hoped that Chinese students in England would increase their numbers in the near future as a result of the labors of the British Committee of which Sir John Jordan was chairman. Turning to the present situation in China, Mr. Sze said it was his confident opinion that the important question of Chinese domestic politics would be settled before the year ended. China was now at the turning-point and had realised the necessity for maintaining a strong, stable and united Government.

Marshal Haig, King George & General Foch. INP.

At the grave of British soldiers at Notre Dame de Lorette, near Vimy Ridge, the King of England saw Marshal Foch and Earl Haig grasp hands. He stepped forward with marked emotion and, holding both distinguished soldiers by the arms, said, in French: "Always good friends." Foch replied, also in French: "Certainly, Your Majesty. We shall always be good friends for the same cause and for the same reason."

Coast Officers' Guild Loses Mixed Court Suit Against Shipping Company

Decision Holds Arbitration Award Fixing Wage Scale Is Not Legal Contract, But Agreement Enforceable Only By Economic Means

Of importance to employers and employes generally and of special importance to shipping men is a decision handed down yesterday in the Mixed Court which holds that an arbitration award that was entered into between the China Coast Officers Guild and the San Pei Steam Navigation Company may not be regarded as a legal contract. The award, which fixed a scale of wages, the Court holds, was an economic settlement, enforceable only by economic means, and an action that the Guild brought against the steamship company therefore is dismissed.

The text of the decision which was handed down by Assessor Blackburn is as follows:

This is an action brought by the plaintiffs to compel the defendants to comply with the terms of an arbitration award. The facts are briefly as follows:

In December 1919 the Masters and Officers of the steamers operating on the China coast, being dissatisfied with their salaries, went on strike. After some negotiation the dispute was referred to the arbitration of two gentlemen in Hongkong, and on May 27, 1920 an award was made allowing higher scales of wages than those in force previously, and making the new scales retrospective as from December 15, 1919. The parties to the arbitration were the China Coast Officers' Guild and the Marine Engineers Guild of China on one side and certain steamship companies on the other side. Although the name of the defendant company appears in the award as a party to the arbitration, it is admitted by the plaintiffs that the defendant company did not in fact sign a submission to arbitration, pleading that such submission "would run them into a lot of money," but signed instead an undertaking in the following form:

"Shanghai, March 15, 1920.
The Secretary,
China Coast Officers' Guild,
Present.

Dear Sir: With reference to the interview held this morning between your Captain Leach and the undersigned, we hereby beg to confirm the assurance given you verbally that we will abide by the result of the arbitration award regarding the scale of wages to be paid to the Captains and Offices in our employ.

We are, etc.,
The San Peh S. N. Co., Ltd.
(Sd) K. C. Sheng,
Manager."

Upon publication of the award the defendant company paid to those members of the plaintiff Guild who were in its employ the arrears allowed under the award and continued to pay the award scale of wages until about March 1921, when it informed the members in question that it could not continue to pay the award rates. Apparently the members accepted the position and consented to continue serving at a lower rate of wages. When this was brought to the notice of the Guild's executive certain correspondence passed in which the Guild threatened to take legal proceedings to enforce the award unless the award rates were paid, and the defendant company took up the position that the change in shipping conditions absolved them from further obedience to the award, which was silent as to the period during which the award rates were to be in force. Subsequently, after the commencement of the present proceedings, all the members of plaintiff Guild in defendants employ signed a document declaring their willingness to continue serving the company at their present reduced rates of pay and dissociating themselves from the proceedings being taken by the Guild against the company.

IMPORTANT POINT

Now although it seems to have been assumed by both parties up to the commencement of these proceedings that the defendant company as a party to the arbitration, and the plaintiffs' petition was drawn on this supposition, it speedily became clear that this position was untenable, and plaintiffs' Counsel abandoned it, relying in his arguments not on the award itself, but on the undertaking given by the defendant company to abide by the award. This point is important for it disposes of embarrassing questions as to the enforcibility of the Hongkong arbitration in Chinese Courts, and leaves us to determine only the value of the undertaking given by the defendant company to pay a certain rate of wages to the members of the plaintiff Guild.

The first point we have to consider is that: What, if any, was the contract between the parties? Turning to the undertaking of March 15, we see that it refers to an interview between Captain Leach (representing plaintiff Guild) and Mr. Sheng, Manager of defendant company. At this interview, according to Captain Paus, Captain Leach said that unless the defendant company argeed to submit to the arbitration the officers employed by the company would go on strike. Although there is considerable confusion in the evidence owing to events which must have occurred in December, 1919, e.g. the affair

Chinese Flappers Read Real Snappy Stories

By Irene Corbally

When Mamma was a Summer Girl and wanted to be real daring she contrived, when departing vacationwards, to hide away in her carpet-bag, near her modest, long-sleeved, high-necked cotton nighties, and in scandalous proximity to Aunt Nellie's parting gift, the New Testament bound in limp, a copy of one of Laura Jean Libbey's saccharine romances. Laura certainly wielded an agitated quill in those days, despite the long skirts, choker collars and ratfilled pompadours of the then-prevailing mode which, undoubtedly, cramped her naturally breezy style somewhat.

As it was, "Parted At the Altar," "Betrayed and Forsaken," "The Phantom Bridegroom," and other products of the fevered, fervid imagination of the lady writer carried a complete set of sobs in every chapter, and several alleged shocks, pale and anaemic beside the modern variety. The pages suffused with tears and shocks, did a simultaneous drying and cooling act toward the close, however, and the romantic atmosphere became more pleasantly fair and breezy toward the advertised happy ending.

LIKES FICTION TOO

Today's version of the Chinese Summer Girl departing on the ultra-rapid de luxe Shanghai-Nanking for Soochow and a holiday among the donkeys, if she is a 1922 model flapper like the two whose antics appear on the screen in the made-in-China film, "A Chinese Vamp," takes a little book, too.

If she is real daring she has one of the T. N. T. "novels" whose sale has been forbidden by Chinese and municipal authorities alike. Human nature is the same in China as elsewhere. Forbid anything to the progressive young mind, just shooting into various paths and branches of knowledge, deny it access to anything, whether literature, so-called, or a foul-smelling, mosquito-infested swamp, and immediately the literature becomes the priceless book beyond books, and the swamp, perfumed Elysian fields.

Seven booksellers and hawkers were arrested during the month of May by the Municipal police authorities for selling Chinese paper-backed novels that would make the naughtiest cyclone in "Breezy Stories" and the peppiest collection of paragraphs in "Snappy Stories," two well-known spicy magazines, look like pure white leaves from a hymnal.

MAN CONVICTED ON DRUG CHARGE ASKS NEW TRIAL

Japanese Implicated In Case Say Chinese House Owner Is Innocent Victim

Application was made in the Mixed Court yesterday by Mr. H. D. Rodger and Mr. K. E. Newman asking the re-opening of a case in which the Chinese owner of the premises at 1243 Wuchow Road was convicted and sentenced to serve six months in jail for smuggling morphia.

The attorneys based their application upon the testimony of three Japanese implicated in the case who had refused to testify when it was heard and after testimony these three had given in the Japanese consular court was reviewed the application for a re-hearing was taken under advisement.

The three Japanese, S. Yoshida, T. Ohya and G. Nagazawa, all declared that they did not know the Chinese accused, and that he had nothing whatsoever to do with the alleged smuggling. Yoshida, who said he was an importer and exporter, admitted smuggling the morphia, valued at $56,000, into Shanghai on board the Mishimi Maru on June 17. He passed the Customs by having some luggage examined and passed and then affixing the passed labels onto the trunks containing the morphia, he said, and upon landing went to a friend's named Chen on Wuchow Road.

He had some coolies from the Palace Hotel take his luggage first to the hotel, and then to Wuchow Road, he said, and he went there alone. The coolies were arrested in possession of the morphia in the hotel van.

The Chinese convicted on Wednesday, he said, had no connection

FIRE LOSS IN DUBLIN FIXED AT £5,000,000; FIGHTING ENDS

De Valera In Charge Of Retreating Rebels

CIVIL WAR LOOMS

Strife To Be Carried Into Provinces, Belief

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 7.—Quiet reigns in Dublin which is resuming a normal aspect. Business houses and institutions have re-opened and are now dealing with the accumulation of work. The fire brigade succeeded in overcoming the fires in Sackville Street where the damage is estimated at £5,000,000.

Art O'Brien and Sean O'Kelly, who were among those arrested, have been released. They stated that de Valera with Austin Stack escaped from Gresham Hotel three days ago and is now in charge of a flying column some dozen miles outside Dublin.

The Provisional Government's call to arms has met with an enthusiastic response. Queues of recruits have been waiting all day to enlist.

It is the general opinion that although the battle in Dublin is won the Provisional Government is faced with the menace of civil war in the Provinces.

London, July 6.—The fires in O'Connell Street raged all night long. The sky was lit up by sheets of flame. The firemen are working valiantly to prevent the fires spreading to other thoroughfares. Altogether 25 of the city's most important buildings have been destroyed or are burning. One serious effect is the great diminution of the already inadequate hotel accommodation, particularly disastrous in view of the approach of Horse Show Week and the Tailteand Games. The latter is fixed for the beginning of August and hosts of overseas visitors are expected.

BRUGHA'S CONDITION

Mr. Cathal Brugha's condition is critical today, following an operation in hospital.

Mr. Robert Barton, Mr. de Valera's Minister of Lefence, who escaped with de Valera from Sackville Street on Tuesday night, has been arrested.

The surrender of Sackville Street was followed by sniping all night long in Dublin by the remnants of the irregulars.

A Government proclamation today calls the people to arms. It says that the Army has broken the conspiracy aimed at imposing despotism based on brigandage, but that the possibility of continued sporadic action necessitates an increase in the Army. Therefore, the Headquarters of the Volunteer organisation have been instructed to appeal to members to accept active service for six months and recruit other citizens desirous of joining. The Government confidently anticipate that the people will willingly respond. The proclamation concludes: "Do your part in making the country safe for democracy and re-establish the resurgent triumphant Irish nation on a firm and lasting foundation."

Five persons were killed and 14 wounded in Dublin yesterday, making the total for the week 65 persons killed and, 269 wounded.

An Army Bulletin issued this morning says that the remnant of the irregulars who surrendered in Granville Hotel, Sackville Street, yesterday evening numbered 16, including two women, headed by Mr. Art O'Connor. After the surrender, Mr. Cathal Brugha rushed out brandishing a revolver and was wounded.

SCENE OF DESOLATION

Sackville Street today is a terrible scene of desolation. Great volumes of smoke are rising through drizzling rain, forming a huge pall overhanging the city. The buildings destroyed include Hamman's, the Crown, Granville and Gresham Hotels, the General Post Office and the Tramway offices, all of which escaped the fire during the Easter Rebellion of 1916. Some handsome new buildings since erected have escaped the present fires.

London, July 6.—The O'Connell Street fires were raging fiercely at midnight and the complete destruction of the Hotels appears inevitable. Firing has ceased except for occasional sniping.

All the irregulars have either escaped or been captured.

Cathal Brugha was wounded whilst desperately attempting to rush an outpost. The troops have no information with regard to De Valera.

London, July 5.—Many buildings in Sackville Street were on fire at three o'clock this afternoon. The irregulars were still firing from the windows of the Granville Hotel with an inferno of flames on either side. The five last occupants of the Gresham Hotel surrendered at three o'clock.

Prominent Republicans arrested in Dublin today include Sean O'Kelly, the ex-Sinn Fein Ambassador in Paris, and Art O'Brien, former President of the Irish Self-Determination League in London.

STUBBORN DEFENSE

The last stand of the irregulars at O'Connell Street was marked by a stubborn defence and reckless courage. Even after the Gresham Hotel was aflame the defenders continued firing from the upper windows. Close-pressed and driven out by smoke, they took up their position in the Granville Hotel where they continued to resist.

The firing caused an outbreak on the opposite side of the street, threatening the Edinburgh Hotel, from which shortly after 30 people, including a whitehaired old lady of 70 under flag of truce, emerged carrying their luggage.

The Gresham Hotel is now a smoking heap of ruins. Red Cross men bravely rescued the Hotel horses. The fire brigade is busy amidst the shooting, limiting the area of the conflagrations.

A Free State communique mentions the taking prisoner of Garry Houlihan, described as one of the leaders of the irregulars.

with the affair, but that he had merely taken the morphia to his house because he figured he would stand less chance of being caught at a stranger's than in his own place.

Mr. Kentwell asked the Court to find his client not guilty because, he asserted, there was more than a reasonable doubt that he was not guilty. The testimony of the three Japanese, he said, proved that the Chinese was in no way implicated and as there was a great doubt the prisoner should be given the benefit of that doubt and released.

Superintendent of Police Vaughn, opposing the application, asserted, and in his cross-examinations sought to bring out, that the Japanese witnesses were not reliable. Yoshida, he said had confessed that he had smuggled morphia in on previous occasions and in this case there were strong doubts that he was telling the truth. Mr. Vaughn cited the case in the Japanese Court which has not been completed, in which the Japanese Magistrate had asserted he did not believe Yoshida's story, and asked the Court not to place a great deal of credence in their testimony.

Much Bloodshed In German Riots

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, July 5.—Details of yesterday's Republican demonstration show that it was accompanied by considerable bloodshed. The most serious affair was where an ex-Captain, who was an estate-manager, was killed.

Police reinforcements from Madgeburg fought thousands of armed rioters all night long. There were many casualties. The rioters in the morning looted Count Genisenau's castle.

Demonstrators at Singen, near Freiburg, were fired on by an ex-major whose house they stormed, killing the ex-major. It appears that one person was killed and 19 wounded in the disturbances at Wiesbaden.

Fighting between workmen and police at Zwickau, Saxony, followed an attack on the Town Hall with the object of disarming the police. The latter fired on the crowd and the demonstrators replied with the result that one workman and one policeman were killed. There were numbers of wounded on both sides. The hostilities lasted until late last night.

A crowd, numbering 25,000 rioted at Somerscheuburg. Three persons were killed and 10 wounded. The demonstrators were surrounded and disarmed by a detachment of twenty police.

Peking, July 7.—The Ministry of Communications has received a telegram from General Lu Yung-hsiang, stating that the telegraphic administration of Chekiang has been taken over and will be controlled by Chekiang Provincial officials. Chinese Flappers Read Real Snappy Stories are at once singularly innocent and all revealing. The elasticity of the Chinese characters admits of several translations into English, of course. One of the forbidden paper-backs is translated, literally, from the title, "A Full Copy of Matters Awakening the World," and, again, by a censor who has read the book, "The Reformation of a Roue."

Still, there is nothing to suggest dangerous material for the young mind in such euphonious titles as "The Red Flower," "The Peach Blossom," "The Apricot Blossom." One might think they were nature studies or dissertations on botany. Even "Gossips By An Old Person," known also as "The Tale of a Wild Elder," sounds harmless enough. Yet this latter is an ambitious work of twenty volumes, and is a favorite among the wild young folk who pursue this kind of reading matter.

If further evidence is needed that China is, as has been claimed until the phrase is threadbare, a land of sharp contrasts, it may be gathered right here in a comparison of the extremes of Chinese literature.

To cite the classics as examples of the best and purest Chinese literature is too obvious. For purposes of comparison it were better to take the comparatively modern Chinese novel, about which there is very little heard, so all-obscuring is the shadow of greatness thrown by the classics with their concomitant of antiquity and all it connotes in respect and reverence.

THE STORY OF ZAH

There is, for instance, the story of Zah Tow Chee, alias King Noch Yuen, the tale of the boy who was born with a piece of jade in his mouth. It is a love story of the purest type and describes the home life of a family of a Manchu peerage. The son, born with jade in his mouth, when he grows to manhood, falls in love with a cousin. His parents oppose the match for they believe she is of weak character and not a good housewife. They suggest for his wife another cousin who, as a child, was presented with a gold lock by a monk.

The son falls ill and during his sickness his parents marry him to the cousin of their choice. When he recovers he learns, not only that he is married to the girl he does not love, but that his own beloved has died.

He bears his sorrow with typical Chinese resignation, meanwhile studying for his degree. When his wife presents him with a son, and he passes his examination, he elopes for he feels now that he has repaid all obligations to his family.

TYPES ARE DIFFERENT

The tremendous variance in Oriental and Occidental manners, morals and customs, of necessity, is responsible for a vastly different type of literature produced by the West and by the East. The Chinese, certainly, have more play for their imaginations, for they are not hampered by conventions or prohibition and marriage laws that allow no man intoxicating drink and provide for only one connubial partner until the law or death intervenes by request or accident.

The Chinese writer of best sellers can safely and comfortably allow his hero to espouse two wives. However, this is all perfectly proper and this sort of novel is allowed in the very best homes. Besides a well-defined plot, there are in the best Chinese novels, passages of exquisite beauty. True, there is an appalling lack of luxuriance of word images. According to authorities, the phrases that the writers particularly fancy for descriptive passages are used over and over again. This does not detract from their pristine beauty, however. Nor does it alter the fact that the Chinese sentimental novel is replete with refreshing draughts of the super-imagination of the writers. In what American novel would one find a situation paralleling this one, for instance?

A young man, already engaged, is besought by a young woman, for some reason or other disguised as a youth, to marry her. He is an honest young man so he tells her he is already booked up. This trivial fact does not discourage the maiden who immediately suggests herself as a candidate for the position of Number 2 wife. This act is considered the supreme height of nobility.

The young heroes in the Chinese sentimental novel do not yearn, as the American and Success magazines tell it, to be a $25,000 a year man, with a wife, a home and a steady income, and maybe a Ford, with a partnership in his firm as the glowing light held aloft by Ambition. Not His supreme ambition is to become a Chang Yuen. In other words, he wants to be first on the list of those who have successfully passed their examinations.

FOR REMOVING SUPERFLUOUS HAIR.

No woman who has any sense of beauty will deny that superfluous hair is one of the greatest drawbacks to good looks.

Realising this, women of all times have put themselves to any expense, and have endured considerable pain and discomfort in order to rid themselves of this great disfigurement.

Nowadays electrolysis is a prevalent "cure" for this evil, but in reality this process involves a great deal of unnecessary expense, waste of time and pain.

The simplest quickest, and most effective treatment can easily be carried out by any sufferer, in the privacy of her home. This is the recipe:

Procure about 1 oz. powdered pheminol from your chemist; mix a sufficient quantity with a few drops of water into a stiff paste. Apply this carefuly and thoroughly to the hair you wish to remove, and allow the paste to dry. In a few minutes it can be gently scraped away. The skin is left absolutely free from hair, and should then be carefully washed in warm water, and if desired, lightly dusted with a little talcum powder. (Advt.)

Japanese Put In Bills For Railways

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, July 7.—A communique states that at today's meeting of the Shantung Commission the Japanese delegates tabled the following statement of expenditure during the Japanese regime:

(1) Locomotives costing Yen 5,130,000.

(2) Cars costing Yen. 5,630,000.

A suitable allowance for depreciation will be made.

The Japanese Commissioners consented to the Chinese proposal to send Chinese to work on the Tsingtao-Tsinan railway prior to its transfer to China.

Rolls-Royce May Quit Aero Field

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 6.—In the House of Commons today, questioned regarding the recent threat of the Rolls Royce firm to close down their aerodrome works if orders were not forthcoming, the Secretary of State for Air, Captain F. E. Guest, referred to the reductions in the Air estimates, by which money was not available for large orders by the Air Ministry. The latter had made strong representations to the Government, he stated, on the alarming outlook if the Rolls Royce and other firms were compelled to close down.

Mr. Lloyd George said that the inquiry into our whole air position by the Subcommittee of Imperial Defence had been completed, but that before the Government took action they would welcome the views of the Parliamentary Air Committee.

THRIFT TESTIMONIALS OF NOTABLE MEN

Sir Thomas Lipton

"I have often been asked to define the true secret of success. It is thrift in all its phases, and especially thrift as applied to saving. Saving is the first great principle of success. It creates independence, it gives a young man standing, fills him with vigor, it stimulates him with proper energy; in fact, it brings to him the best part of any success—happiness and contentment."

Coast Officers' Guild Loses Mixed Court Suit

of Captain Doyle, being mixed up with others which occurred in March 1920, it is reasonable to suppose that this is what actually did occur, and we find that the contract between the parties was that in consideration of the members of plaintiff Guild in the defendant company's employ not going on strike, the defendant company agreed to pay them wages in accordance with the award of the Hongkong arbitrators. In so far therefore as consideration is concerned the agreement seems to be a valid contract. We will not refer further to Captain Doyle than just to say that his case is covered by a separate agreement signed by defendants dated December 22, 1919, and appears to have no bearing on the present action.

We now come to the point which is the crux of the whole action, namely: Is the plaintiff Guild not bound by the action of its own members in waiving their rights to receive wages in accordance with the above contract? We have already referred to the document in which the members of the plaintiff Guild in the defendant company's employ signified their willingness to serve the company "at the present rate of pay," namely a rate considerably lower than the award rate. It has been suggested, but not very convincingly, that this document was signed under the influence of threats, but there is no evidence to this effect and we must accept the document at its value as an abandonment of any right the signatories might have had to be paid at the award rates. We are told however that this abandonment does not bind the Guild, so we have to examine the circumstances more closely.

QUOTES AUTHORITY

As plaintiffs' Counsel has quoted Halsbury to us, we will refer to Halsbury, where we find: "When a trade union is a legal association at common law its agreements may . . . be enforced as in the case of any ordinary club."

Vol. 27, p. 612.

"Now as the Guild is not incorporated, it is an unincorporated members' club, which is "a society of persons each of whom contributes to the funds out of which the expenses of conducting the society are paid" and "it is not recognised as having any legal existence apart from the members of which it is composed."

Vol. 4, p. 405.

"The rights and liabilities of members of a club on contracts made on their behalf, are prima facie joint only, and all the members should be joined as plaintiffs or defendants, as the case may be, in any action on such a contract."

Vol. 4, p. 423.

"An unincorporated members' club not being a partnership or legal entity cannot sue or be sued in the club name."

Vol. 4, p. 426.

"The plaintiff Guild, in short, is not a legal entity and in an English Court it could not have brought this action in its present form, while, if all its members had been joined as plaintiffs, the absurdity of the proceeding would have been more obvious than it is.

As however the Chinese law governing associations is much more indefinite than the English law we have given the plaintiff the benefit of the doubt, and allowed the petition to stand. In consequence we have had to look at the circumstances from a slightly different angle, though the result is the same.

The original contract, partly oral, partly written, was made by Captain Leach representing the plaintiff Guild with the Manager of the defendant company. As the only persons towards whom the defendant company undertook any contractual obligations were those members of plaintiff Guild in the company's employ, Captain Leach must in this transaction be regarded simply as the agent of those members. On behalf of of his principals he contracted that they would not go on strike in consideration of payment of wages at the award rates. Since then the principals themselves subsequently waived thier rights under this contract, it is difficult to see how the executive of the Guild, who are only the agents of the members, can be permitted to enforce the earlier contract in face of the waiver of their own principals.

ANOTHER REASON

This would seem to be conclusive of the issues in the case, but we wish to add that if the petition did not fail on this ground it would fail on another, namely the absence of any provision in the agreement between the parties with regard to the duration of its validity. It appears to us that it would be improper to order specific performance of an agreement for the payment of a definite scale of wages when no duration of time is specified, even if it could be shown that conditions affecting the contract had not materially altered since the contract was entered into,—as to which point the plaintiffs have not satisfied us. Counsel for the Guild contends that such an agreement can only be altered with the consent of both the parties. If then one party persistently refuses his consent the agreement becomes perpetual. This was certainly not the intention of the parties, nor would it be equitable to enforce such an interpretation.

In conclusion we would say that none of the English text books to which we have been referred deal with the enforcement of wages awards, nor can we find any record of any similar action having been brought before, though a similar set of circumstances must have arisen countless times within recent years in connection with labor disputes in England and elsewhere. Agreements such as that in the present case seem to be considered not as legal contracts but as economic settlements, enforceable only by economic means.

The petition is dismissed.

Disallows Claim For Interest In Suit By Stores

That retail stories in Shanghai must make arrangements at the time of sale for interest to be charged on account was the opinion delivered by Magistrate G. W. King in the British Supreme Court yesterday in a suit brought by the Shanghai Stores against Captain Frederick Davies for $15, being the balance on an overcoat sold to him, and compound interest on the same.

Mr. King held that neither compound interest nor simple interest could be charged unless it was definitely arranged that interest should be charged on an unpaid claim, or if the plaintiffs had written demanding the money and pointed out that if the payment was not made interest would be charged.

In the present case the Shanghai Stores had not written to tell Captain Davies that interest would be charged, nor had it been arranged mutually that interest would be paid. He accordingly gave judgment for $15 and costs, but disallowed the claim for compound interest on the money for three years.

Russian Priest Charges Church Has Forgotten Tenets

(Posta News Agency)

Moscow, June 27.—A leading priest in Russia declares that church has forgotton the original principles of Christianity. During the Tsar's regime church was bound to the state by gold chains and served its purposes, and instead of Christian love, war was blessed. Now the aim of the church is to purify itself of all alien elements and approach real Christianity.

Another priest states that reform of the church is urged by the present conditions of life. This movement of the Russian clergy is heartily welcomed by the Tolstoyists.

The custodian of the Rumaiantzev Museum, Grabar, says that the appropriation of church treasures for famine relief has incidentally enriched the museum with numerous artistic antiques.

The Realistic artists have opened an exhibition for the benefit of famine relief.

The street union is an organisation to look after the interests of the people on the street for which it is named.

Insurance Firm Reports Good Year

Thee 97th annual meeting of the Scottish Union and National Insurance Company, was held at Edinburgh on May 3 last.

Taking into account the unfavorable conditions which prevailed during the year 1921, the report presented is satisfactory. Poor trade, reduced values of commodities, diminished stocks, etc., resulted in the company securing less business practically in all departments. The net results, however, are not by any means disappointing.

The total profit for the year was £236,000, as against £143,000 for 1920, and the usual dividend of 30 percent was declared, this being practically provided out of the interest on the company's investments.

The sum of £223,898 was carried forward to 1922.

The company is represented here by Messrs. Rayner, Heuser and Co., Ltd., and Messrs. J. A. Wattie and Co., Ltd.

Too Fine Bargain Brings Jail Term

China is the land of bargains but even a bargain that is too good can get a man in jail. There is the case of a Chinese who was sentenced by Mr. A. D. Blackburn, British Assessor, and Magistrate Li, in the Mixed Court yesterday, to one month's imprisonment, for attempting to sell a gold chain and a ruby for $3.

Mr. Schumser, who testified, said that the accused approached him on the street and offered him the ruby and gold chain for $3. The accused offered the startling bargain for three reasons, the principal one being that he needed the money.

Mr. Schumser was more impressed with the potentiality of fraud than with the bargain and the would-be seller was haled to court.

Hot Weather Scalp Irritation

THE excessive perspiration set up in the scalp during the hot weather is A REAL DANGER TO THE HEALTH OF THE HAIR AND HAIR ROOTS. Excessive perspiration causes irritation of the scalp. As a counter-irritation scratching is unconsciously resorted to. The finger nails injure the delicate surface structure of the scalp, and permit the ever-present germs to invade the cells which feed the hair roots. These germs attack the hair roots, and are a direct cause of failing hair and dandruff so noticeable in the hot weather.

An application of 'GERMOL' once or twice a week will prevent irritation of the scalp, and will kill invading germs. 'GERMOL' imparts a delightfully cooling and pleasing sensation to the scalp, and is a safeguard against diseases which attack the scalp and hair roots specially at this season of the year.

Bates Defeats Parbury In Brilliant Tennis Match At French Club

Local Man Carries Californian To Five Sets

BY WESTA

Bates, the lanky California tennis expert who dashed into our midst some days ago, scored a one handed victory over Parbury on the cement court at the French club yesterday, in a contest that may be truthfully described as one of the most dazzling ever seen on a Shanghai court. The Californian's victory was one handed for the reason that his other hand was busily engaged through practically the whole of the match in holding the edges of his shirt together in lieu of a button that popped off at a critical spot in the first set. Critical spot on the shirt, not in the set.

Please do not get the impression, however, that the brand of tennis displayed by Mr. Parbury yesterday would succumb to anybody's one handed opposition. The absence of the button may have embarassed the Californian, and undoubtedly did embarass him, judged by the way he continually fumbled with the gapping shirt flaps. Nevertheless, if the edges of that garment had been secured with a full set of see-those-humps, aided and abetted by a whole flock of safety pins, he still would have had a man's sized job on his hand yesterday, the way Parbury was going.

PARBURY AT HIS BEST

Mr. Parbury probably never played better tennis, and while it is difficult to be other than neutral, at least, when such a sterling sportsman as Wally Bates is playing, there were those in the big crowd who were not in the least ashamed of wishing that the magnificent effort of the local man might have been rewarded with victory.

Victory, while never within the immediate grasp of the Shanghai player, might just as well have been his, for his game was in practically every respect the equal of the tennis displayed by his younger opponent. His service was not as severe, it is true, nor were his returns driven with the power displayed by the tall youth from the other side of the Pacific. But in accuracy and steadiness he was a match for Bates. His recoveries were just as brilliant and his placements were just as precise and deadly. Time and again the local man brought exclamations of applause from the crowd and from Bates himself when with perfect timing and deadly accuracy he left his rangy opponent flatfooted with a return that he couldn't even attempt, let alone reach.

Both men kept pretty close to the baselines, although both went to the net occasionally, and in his turns at the net Parbury showed to slightly better advantage than Bates. On lobs, too, he had a distinct advantage over Bates, as the latter frequently drove into the net in attempting sure kills. Bates put more "stuff" on the ball than his opponent, some of his cut shots dropping almost dead at Parbury's feet. The local man, however, was always on the alert for these, and some of his returns of balls that came twisting, spinning and low bouncing from Bates racquet were little short of marvelous.

FEW SERVICE ACES

Parbury took the Bates service in fine style, the Californian getting but few service aces. This was due partly to the local man's steadiness and sure eye, and partly to the fact that the swiftness of the Bates service was frequently wasted in wild first efforts. If Bates could keep that first serve of his within the lines he certainly would present a problem to his opponents. But with his fury dissipated in the first serve, the second one is more or less human, with the result yesterday that Parbury found no particular difficulty with it.

Following is the point score:

Anti-Racing Bill Up In Louisiana

Baton Rouge, La.,—The Louisiana Senate has taken the first step toward outlawing race betting by passing the Butler Anti-Racing bill by a vote of 22 to 18, only one vote margin for the necessary majority.

The bill has yet to pass the House. If it passes there it means racing will be stopped in Louisiana.

Wimbledon Card Is Upset By Rain

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 5.—At Wimbledon today heavy rain upset the program, which included three-round matches, the winners to qualify for the semi-finals. Only one was finished, Lycett beating Davson, 2-6, 6-1, 6-4, 8-6.

Patterson leads in his match against Campbell, by two sets to one. The match between Gilbert and Mavrogordato was not started.

The ladies' semi-finals will be between Mrs. Peacock and Mlle. Lenglen and between Mrs. Mallory and Mrs. Beamish.

Recs Will Meet Lancastrians Today

The following team has been chosen by the Shanghai Recreation Club for the cricket match with the Lancastrian Society at 2 p.m. today: J. W. Brierby, A. J. Clark, W. C. G. Clifford, P. Madar, I. G. Main, C. T. Marley, H. B. Ollerdessen, F. C. H. Ollerdessen, Rev. C. E. Spencer, T. W. R. Wilson, A. J. Willis. Reserves: C. E. Ollerdessen, H. J. Cooper. The match will be played at the Recs' ground.

HURON NINE TO MEET SHANGHAI IN GAME TODAY

With the U.S.S. Huron nine playing again today, Shanghai has inaugurated another cycle in the busiest of baseball seasons which has been provided here through the visit of the American fleet. Today's game is scheduled to start at 3:30 o'clock, and a second game between Shanghai and the Huron baseballers will be played tomorrow afternoon at the same hour.

Arrangements have already been made by Manager Heroy Gallop to keep the baseball season going at full swing despite the loss suffered through the departure of the destroyer squadrons and the sailing of the Huron on Monday. A game has been booked with the U. S. S. Isabel for Wednesday afternoon, and it is possible that the Isabel team will also be the attraction for next Saturday and Sunday.

If possible, one more game may be played with the University of California nine. The Collegians are due here on Friday, July 28 on their return home from Manila, and if the vessel on which they are traveling remains in port a sufficient time, a game may be booked for the following day.

The U.S.S. Huron returns from Japan on the 20th and games are being arranged for the 22nd and 23rd.

SAILOR ACCEPTS BOYLE DEFI FOR BOXING MATCH

Another acceptance of the challenge issued by "Nick" Boyle, local lightweight, comes from Eddy McCabe, carpenter's mate aboard the U.S.S. Isabel, who not only welcomes an opportunity to mix it with Boyle, but is willing to take on any man who can make his weight of 152 pounds. The sooner the better is the way McCabe puts it.

McCabe, who hails from Illinois and is serving his second enlistment in the Navy, has a record of knockouts over Doodie Caseyin one round; Henry Maechor in four rounds; George Plovich in seven rounds, and Eddie Beecher in three rounds. He also has wins over Bobby Waugh in eight rounds and Spike Spangola in six rounds.

Among the men he has fought are Curley Smith, George Oberling, Jimmy Gory, Denny O'Keefe and Cyclone Williams. While here last winter, he staged several exhibition bouts and tried to arrange a real match but could not find an opponent.

McCabe is willing to leave the arrangements for the match with Boyle take care of themselves, but he would prefer to have it twelve rounds of three minutes each with an intermission of one minute between rounds. He prefers four-ounce gloves. He can make 148 pounds ringside if necessary.

Tuchun Suggests State Rights For China's Provinces

(Independent News Service)

Hankow, July 3.—Governor Chao Heng-ti of Changsha, Hunan, has advanced his own political theory in a telegram to members of the Parliament at Peking, Tientsin and Shanghai, suggesting a form of federal state government after the model of the United States as the only means of salvaging China politically.

The provinces should be given state rights to administrate their own affairs by following an autonomous constitution which does not interfere with the running of a central government, he said. General Chao Heng-ti branded the present program of Peking to effect reunification as one incapable of bringing about permanent peace in the land, and strongly urged the adoption of federal government which is necessary in the evolution of a strong national government in a country of such dimensions as China.

Governor Chao says that efforts should not be spared at this time to work out a permanent unification scheme in China so that the country may hereafter develop along legitimate lines. He adds that Hunan has adopted its own constitution which is now in force, and expresses the hope that provincial and national constitutions may be worked out now to end the incessant squabbles among factions in China.

Ordered To Pay Municipal Rates In Installments

Mrs. B. Skoglund Abeles, a Roumanian, was ordered to pay Tls. 30 a month for four months toward payment of Municipal rates by British Assessor Blackburn and Magistrate Li in the Mixed Court yesterday morning.

Police Prosecutor Faithful told the Court that she had failed to pay Municipal rates on a house at 23 North Szechuen Road for January, February and March. Her husband, appearing for her because of illness, explained that they did not have the money ready to pay in a lump sum but made an offer of Tls. 30 monthly which was agreeable to Mr. Faithful, and the Court made an order accordingly.

Chloroform Prisoner To Get Fingerprint

Newton, N. J., June 3.—Sussex County authorities chloroformed a prisoner, whose name they refused to reveal, in order to obtain his fingerprints, it was learned today.

Jail officials admitted that the prisoner hails from St. Louis and that he was taken in custody a week ago at the request of police in a distant city. But all other data concerning him or the reason for his detention are kept a secret.

For eight days the man has successfully fought off all effort to take his fingerprints, it was said. Yesterday, a physician was summoned, the prisoner was surprised in his cell, the chloroform fumes liberated and the work accomplished. He revived quickly.

Jute Fabrics

In the circular on jute fabrics, Mr. J. A. Fredericks writes as follows:

Heavy C's 2½ lbs. greenstripe were done at Tls. 202 and are obtainable at this price; while 2¼ lbs. bluestripe are slightly lower at Tls. 168. Hessian cloth is wanted at Tls. 113 with prospects of improving further in view of the smallness of stocks and the prevailing higher cost of replacement in Calcutta.

Directors Blamed For Troubles Of Banque

(Reuter's Special Service)

Paris, July 6.—The report of the Senatorial Committee with regard to the Banque Industrielle de Chine, signed by M. Guillaume Poulle, declares that the Directors of the Bank were imprudent in granting almost unlimited credits where such confidence was not justified.

They had attracted depositors from the Far East by allowing a very high rate of interest and thought to compensate themselves by involving the Bank in long-term credit operations of considerable risk.

Moreover, they had tolerated large uncovered personal liabilities among the Directors which pointed to private speculation on their part.

Dealing with the inefficiency of the assistance afforded to the Bank, the report recalls that what absorbed the large sum after the depositors had been paid off was the payment of fresh advances to different debtors, by which, in Paris alone, debit accounts were increased by 72,000,000 francs.

Writing in the Revus dee Deux Mondes, M. D'Arcais, who accompanied Marshal Joffre to the Far East, remarks that wherever the Marshal came in contact with financial, commercial and industrial circles, whether French, Chinese or foreign, he found the unanimous opinion that the Banque must be refloated.

M. D'Arcais points out that it is absurd to speak of rivalry in the domain of exchange deposits and advances, etc., which are common to all Banks. French Indo-China, Siam and the British and Dutch possessions in the Far East are developing with incredible rapidity and the volume of business is increasing so that everyone can prosper without injuring his neighbor.

The reason for the Banque Industrielle crisis lies in the fact that the Paris directors lost sight of the principles on which the Banque was founded. The deposits and profits harvested from Singapore to Yokohama were immobilised in purely home affairs in which they were swallowed up or compromised.

Paris, July 6.—M. Maurice Long, the Governor-General of Indo-China, reporting to the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee yesterday, emphasised the powerfull effect which the Allied victory had on Eastern peoples. He showed that the relations of Indo-China with Japan were cordial and mentioned points in the Customs tariff which could be improved in the interests of relations with the Peking Government.

The Government of Indo-China was in touch with Southern China where it treated with the Military Governors who were the real heads of the State. This policy had resulted in the absence of frontier incidents. M. Long in conclusion said that France's liberal policy in the Far East had been approved by the inhabitants of those countries and would give happy results.

M. Long considered that the Chinese Government's concessions to the Banque Industrielle de Chine were materially and morally important.

Cotton

In their weekly report on the Shanghai cotton market, Messrs. A. B. Rosenfeld and Son write as follows:

China Cotton.—During the past week, there has been no change in the fundamental condition of the market. Fluctuations had been within narrow limits and were influenced from day to day by the weather map and the trend of the yarn market and ended at the close of the week with a steady tendency. Aside from the speculative features, the chief development of the situation was the additional heavy rain in the Kiangsu, Chili and Shantung Provinces and along the Valley. On Zungming Island, the Lowlands are submerged and some sections of the Uplands have also been effected by the recent heavy rains. The outlook in the Chekiang Province is more hopeful. Reports from Shensi, Shansi, Shasi and Honan for the past week are not to hand. Mid-Americans on Tuesday the 3rd instant advanced 170 points for spot, and in sympathy therewith the Bombay market is reported to be excited.

From the above, it will be seen that the outlook hinges on future weather developments in consequence of which a conservative policy seems advisable for the new crop position.

Yarn:—The yarn market during the past week has been practically steady with little business transpiring. Prices ruling the same as compared with last week's level. Business for export has been booked, some 5,000 to 6,000 bales in all of 20's, 16's, 14's and 12's.

SPUNT REPORTS

Messrs. J. Spunt and Company write as follows in their report on the cotton market:

China Cotton:—Our market manifested a firm undertone throughout the past week and prices rose by about Tls. 0.75 per picul higher than that current during the previous period, due in a measure to a slight demand on the part of Spinners who are availing themselves of small parcels tendered at favorable rates when compared with the heavy rise in both Mid-Americans and Indians. Had there been a livelier movement in our yarn markets there is no doubt that the rates on the local staple would have been more responsive to the bullishness displayed in the U. S. A. and Indian markets coupled with the not too favorable climatic conditions now prevalent for the domestic growth of the new season crop.

In taking a survey at this stage of the new season crop throughout the cotton belt of the world, one is led to recognise the discouraging indications toward an ultimate yield inadequate to meet the requirements of the universal textile industries. And for this reason it becomes obvious, provided nothing in the interim disrupts the peace of the world, prices for the time being will continue with natural fluctuations around present limits though most sensitive according as the weather and insect pests affect henceforth the progress of the plant toward ultimate fruition. Tone of the market, Firm.

Peking-Hankow To Have Aero Service

(Eastern News Agency)

Hankow, July 5.—It is reported here that an agreement has been reached between Tsao Kun and Pan Chu-yin, Chief of the Aviation Bureau, for the opening of the regular air service between Peking and Hankow. Oil Payments Bill Passes 3rd Reading

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 6.—The Anglo-Persian Oil Payments and Calls Bill passed the third reading in the House of Commons last night.

Sir J. L. Baird, the Under-Secretary of State for Home Affairs, mentioned that the Company proposed to spend nearly £1,000,000 on plant and over £2,000,000 on the purchase of vessels.

But when his great day came, his defamers found that his "black" soul was white and his "yellow" blood, spilled for them, was red—red.
"Told in the Hills" is a mighty epic of the West of the pioneers, of scout and gold hunter and roving Indian, of the West as it was in other times and never will be again.
The novel has thrilled countless thousands. Now Robert Warwick, with a brilliant supporting cast including Ann Little, Wanda Hawley, Tom Forman, Monte Blue, Eileen Percy, Hart Hoxie and Guy Oliver, has given the story life in a great screen masterpiece. Don't miss it.

Why Reason Is Not King

BY OWEN OWEN

A FEW years ago, before the war, a book appeared, "The Great Illusion" by Angell, arguing very plausibly that war between civilised nations was henceforth forever impossible. International finance and the dense network of trade relations across every frontier and coast made it so, in his opinion.

Thousands of people, reading the book, were convinced the time had come when "the war-drum throbbed no longer and the battle-flags were furled." It was a soothing and comforting doctrine.

Shortly afterward the World War came.

That was the largest object-lesson of the many history has thrust upon us for centuries, that reason is minor among the forces ruling the world. The ambition of one monarch for world dominion, the extraordinary strength of a people's pride of nationality, the almost irrepressible force of a vast war organisation chafing under inaction—these burst forth, carrying the cold logic of trade before them like the timbers of a broken dam swept away by a flood in Spring.

No, reason is not king in human affairs, and (perhaps you are not expecting me to say this) it should not be—until some centuries have passed and it has caught up with instinct.

I don't mean that war is a good thing, but that reason is a thing of yesterday while instinct is its elder by a million years more or less, according to the biologists. Man's natural tendencies, implanted by nature, have kept the race alive and ascending for aeons.

Reason is a newly acquired power, arrogant and headstrong as youth always is. It is a dangerous tool that we have not wholly learned to wield, and it will remain in tutelage to the wild human heart until it has learned its own limitations.

The cosmos is a ship on which we are sailing an unknown sea under sealed orders. We don't know our destination. Reason cannot yet tell us. It cannot break the seal of the envelope marked "Whither." Something within us tells us to steer away from the rocks, to furl sail when storms rage, to take pleasure and enjoy fair weather when we may, and above all to keep going.

Schopenhauer, an excellent type of the thinker uncontrolled by normal impulses, reached the conclusion that logically the human race should permit itself to die out. Pure intellect could see no harbor ahead worth the pain and frustration of the long voyage. Pure intellect would not listen to something in the breast saying, "The voyage for its own sake is worth all, so let us onward!"

But in the wiser moment he saw clearly how weak our thinking still is, for he wrote: "While statesmen and philosophers dispute as to laws and administration, love and hunger govern the world."

We don't realise that Mind has developed mostly as a tool to help us satisfy our material needs. It has evolved, like the erect posture and the opposable thumb. It looks backward upon experience, forward upon probability; invents, adjusts, prepares.

Mind made the bow and arrow to outrun and fell the antelope, stole the secret of fire from Nature to cook the meat, in an inspired moment devised pottery to cook it in. During ages it perfected a system of throaty signals—speech. Speech enabled men to co-operate in the fight with Nature, wresting food, shelter and clothing from her with more certainty.

Mind had now become an infinitely versatile servitor, so brilliant that its dumb and inarticulate masters, love and hunger, seemed—but only seemed—less wise, and Mind grappled with law, government, ethics, creeds, not thereby lessening but multiplying the causes for which men make war upon one another.

Humanity is impelled and guided by forces irrational, or, better, super-rational. Love's unreason is wisdom supreme.

Religion denies appearances, saying that though the sun sinks to darkness, the fire burns to ashes, the wine bottle empties, yet when my spirit sinks in the west for the last time daybreak begins, my soul kindles anew from the ultimate spark in its embers, and the real Me, emptied of life's wine, becomes a well-spring eternal.

It is all a point-blank challenge to reason, coming from mysterious depths, where what we reason with was made.

Correspondence

SMALL FINES DO NOT STOP OPIUM TRAFFIC!

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS,

Dear Sir.—The suggestion made by J. P. O. Y. of Hankow in your correspondence column this morning, namely that those convicted of selling or possessing opium should be more severely punished, is an excellent one. At the annual meeting of the Shanghai Branch of the International Anti-Opium Association held recently Mr. Woo pointed out that such small fines as are usually imposed by the Mixed Court are practically no deterrent to a business of which the profits are so great.

Heavy fines, imprisonment, and sealing the premises where opium has been sold, would certainly prove much more effective than the present inadequate punishment by light fines. But the immediate practical question is: How may the Mixed Court be induced to impose adequate punishment? Is it bound by law as to the punishment it may impose? If so how can the law be changed? If not how can it be brought about that more severe penalties be imposed and the dignity not only of the Court, but of all law and order, maintained?

Yours truly,
J. W. CROOOT.

"CHAIRS 10 CENTS"

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS,

Sir: Oh you Band!! . . . May one ask for 10 of your lines, Mr. Editor? for verily this weirdism puzzleth greatly!

Eight or nine years since the (current) deck-chairs—which have meantime paid for themselves hundreds of times over of course—were free. A small charge of 10 cents was instituted merely to save the swamping of these by school-kiddies, amahs, et al. The scheme was quite a success.

Now? Well, the sky's the limit so long as general stupidity will stick for it of course, but one wonders whether this departure (!) is not entitled to a little attention.

In the meantime some genius has tethered said wooden chairs into awkward rows where they are as angularly uncomfortable as they are impossibly unsociable.

It is suggested that the imposition of this ten cents is the curtain for the masked-battery charge of twenty cents for the deck-chairs. There is no earthly excuse for either try-on of course, and I notice that the conductor (carefully) did not play it the while I ask you, Sir, to "Tell me why."

Thanking you for the "ten lines," I am, Sir,

Quirr.

A New Way To Fight Disease

BY HENRY WILLIAMS

Great interest attaches to the report from London that Sir Almroth A. Wright has devised a new method of treating bacterial infections. Any announcement made by the famous originator of modern vaccine therapy naturally gains immediate attention from the medical profession.

As a matter of course the new method builds on old foundations It is, in effect, an extension of vaccine therapy. Or perhaps it might better be described as a combination of vaccine therapy and serum therapy, incorporated with another familiar principle, that of the transfusion of blood from a healthy individual.

Specifically, the method consists of the transfusion into the veins of the patient of blood that has been treated with an immunizing vaccine after collection from the donor. The method is, therefore, spoken of as immuno-transfusion.

The transfusion of normal blood is a rather familiar medical procedure that requires no detailed explanation. Its obvious design is to reinforce a depleted blood supply or to improve the average condition of a vitiated supply.

The new blood brings an equipment of supposedly normal corpuscles that may materially add to the bodily powers of defense against invading bacteria.

The transfused blood, according to Sir Almroth Wright's new method, contains also a vaccine having presumably medicinal value. The vaccine consists of the dead bodies of bacteria of the type that caused the disease from which the patient suffers.

The object of their use is to stimulate the body of the patient to produce antidotal substances that will antagonize the living bacteria whose presence in effect constitutes the malady.

This is the theory of vaccine immunization as applied for the prevention of typhoid fever, with which the army experience during the late war has made every one more or less familiar.

Sir Almroth Wright, the originator of the method, early extended the method to the treatment of various maladies.

Ordinarily the vaccine is administered hypodermically. The idea of adding it to transfused blood, and thus getting it quickly and directly into the blood-system of the patient, is an extension of the method that may prove highly important.

Serum therapy is familiar to the public chiefly because of its general use in the treatment of diphtheria. Immunizing or curative serum is produced, as is well known, in the system of the horse, where the antidote is developed in response to inoculations of the bacterial virus.

The essential difference between serum therapy and vaccine therapy is that in the latter the patient is called upon to develop his own antidote, whereas in the former the antidote is developed in the body of an inoculated animal, and conveyed to the patient through the medium of blood serum extracted from the veins of that animal.

The new method of immuno-transfusion does not use such a serum, but it seems not improbable that the transfused blood, having been treated with the vaccine, has responded in a way to produce a certain amount of the desired antidote.

That is the justification the suggestion that the new method to some extent incorporates the principle of serum therapy with that of vaccine therapy.

The combination of these two important methods with the method of transfusion may justly be considered a radical departure in medical practice.

It is reported that the new methods has been used successfully in the treatment of several cases of steptococcus septicaemia (blood poisoning) of a type hitherto considered hopeless.

There appears to be no theoretical reason why the method may not be applied to all types of acute infectious maladies.

Power, People And The Public Purse

In the Province of Ontario, Canada, electricity generated from water power is served by the Government to the people "at cost." Not only in cities; in small communities, also, and in farm houses along the way. Cost includes paying for the plant.

Besides lighting the Ontario farmer's home, barn, dairy and poultry house, it operates threshers, bales and hoists hay, pumps water, grinds grain, splits and saws wood and mixes concrete for the new silo.

In the dairy it operates churns, milking machines and cream separators.

In the house it runs washing machines, ironers, dish-washers, vacuum cleaners, percolators, egg-boilers, refrigerators, heating pads, vibrators, curling irons and all the other labor-saving devices that make life easy for the farmer's wife.

All this, mind you, "at cost"—no profit to promoters, stock waterers or finance manipulators. "Service" is the sole objective.

Buffalo and Toronto both get "juice" from Niagara Falls—Buffalo after a transmission of twenty miles; Toronto one hundred miles. Yet Buffalo on a private monopoly basis of service pays "six times" as much per unit as Toronto.

The effort to get service of hydro-electric power for the people of New York State at cost was beaten by the Miller Administration, which has virtually awarded rights to a great, privately owned super-Power Trust.

Guess how much inflation, how much excessive profit this monopoly will hide in its bills to consumers!

Scaling The Top Of The Earth

(New York Herald)

Three members of the expedition which early this spring undertook the ascent of Mount Everest, the highest mountain on the earth's surface, have reached the height of 26,800 feet, or within 2,200 feet of the summit. This, so far as is known, is the highest altitude ever attained by a mountain climber.

The height which these three men reached is almost 11,000 feet higher than Mont Blanc, Europe's loftiest mountain; 6,500 feet higher than the summit of Mount McKinley, the highest point in North America, and more than 3,500 feet higher than Mount Aconcagua, the loftiest peak of the Western Hemisphere. It falls, however, 2,000 feet short of the record altitude reached by balloonists and it is 14,000 feet less than the altitude record made by Lieutenant John A. MacReady in an airplane ascension at Dayton, Ohio, last September.

Several mountaineers have reached the summit of Mont Blanc. Archdeacon Hudson Stuck of the Yukon scaled the heights of Mount McKinley in 1914. Miss Anna Peck made some record ascents of South American mountains, notably that of Mount Huascaran, Peru, on which she reached the altitude of 21,812 feet. The Duke of the Abruzzi held the world record previous to the present ascent, by attaining the height of 24,533 feet in the same lofty range of which Everest is a part. The height reached by Howard Bury and his party of the Everest expedition last year did not equal the Abruzzi record by about 1,000 feet.

The three members of the Everest expedition who made the ascent were Major Norton, G. L. Mallory and Dr. Howard Somerville. They first established a camp at 25,000 feet and from there began their climb. Considerable attention had been attracted to the preparations for the expedition by the statement that a supply of oxygen had been taken as a part of the equipment. There was much speculation among scientific men if oxygen would furnish the mountaineers any assistance at all or an assistance commensurate with the trouble which its transportation incurred. The dispatches specifically say that oxygen was not used by the three climbers. The reason is not stated. Evidently those persons who have been anxiously watching this experiment must await the further progress of the ascent.

Much of the preliminary work of survey was done by the Everest expedition of last year. In this way the present party was able to start up the mountain slope soon after it reached the Tibet highlands. It avoided the approaches from both the east and west and traveled directly south to the Rongbuk glacier, an approach to Everest which the former expedition doubted would be the safest and most advisable.

The Royal Geographical Society, it is said, has been greatly encouraged by this first success. Neither this society nor any other authority will, however, go so far as to prophesy from it the ultimate success of the expedition. The most difficult and perilous part of the ascent yet remains to be accomplished.

SUPER-DURABLE FLAT PAINT
FLAT WALL FINISH
A perfect Paint of smooth surface for Interior Wall Coating

The surface obtainable with this paint is smooth and flat, i.e., it is not a grainy, dead, lifeless finish, but of a velvety texture. It dries in a reasonably quick time, so that work can be carried out effectively, yet has the property of remaining open long enough to enable the worker to cover a large surface of wall without making laps or edges.
Excellent results with Super Durable Flat Finish are easily obtained, irrespective of the skill of the user, and an elaborate preparation of the surface is usually quite unnecessary.
Super Durable Flat Finish has been tried on non-absorbent surfaces of all kinds and where distemper and oil paint have proved prone to shell or flake off, it has always adhered. It gives a lasting finish of surprising beauty.

Radio In The Insect World

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS
(Eminent Astronomer And Authority on Subjects Of Scientific Interest)

The State Entomojogist of New York, E. P. Felt, has hit upon a thought-provoking suggestion which may be a paradox in the sense of that word. "This," says he, "has been called the age of man; is it not really the age of insects?"

If numbers ruled, of course it would be; but the surprising suggestion is not based on a comparison of numbers, but on much higher ground.

We call this the age of man not because of the numerical strength of the human species—for in that respect we are a negligible factor in the world's population—but because of our enormous superiority to all other animals in intellect—though surely not in morals; for, judged by his acts, performed in face of his superior knowledge and mentality, man has no equal in immorality! For to many of those who have closely and sympathetically studied the conduct of some of the lower animals it is a familiar thought that if those animals had our equipment of what we call "moral sense" they would sooner perish than be guilty of some of our deeds.

Many a glimpse, too, one may obtain of an apparent moral sense in dogs, elephants, horses, etc., that seems of a somewhat finer strain than ours. "As faithful as a dog" is a high compliment. It would be a strong recommendation in heaven, as heaven is idealised.

But Dr. Felt's suggestion, while silent about moral sentiment, conveys rather a challenge to human intellectual superiority—although I have no right to affirm that he intended it that way. Read, first, something of what he says. After speaking of the "million or more different kinds of insect antennae, each admirably adapted to a specific purpose and some wonderfully suggestive of aerial communication," he adds:

"Ages ago the gall midges, minute flies which produce galls on many plants, learned the advantages of elevated or elongated antennae, and we find here species which have solved the problem by the development of greatly elongated antennal segments, thus increasing very materially the length of the entire organ, and others which have attained the same end through a doubling or trebling of the normal number of segments or joints. As a result some have antennae twice as long as the body. Each segment is a unit, and though the comparison may not be a strictly accurate one, we are inclined to regard the antennal segments as linked in multiple units."

It is a little startling to see these terms of practical electrical science applied to the sense organs of a minute insect, but hear him further:

"The radio enthusiast would certainly be interested in an aerial, or antenna, of the multiple inverted umbrella type, the arms of the umbrellas being loops and in some forms greatly extended on one side, presumably for directive receiving; the umbrellas arranged in double or triple series in multiple units mounted with flexible connections and an articulate base permitting limited rotation. Such structures are found in gall midges!"

I have italicised and exclamatored the last sentence above, as I feel that its author must have done in his mind. Yet he goes still further in his descriptions of the marvelously elaborate and delicate structures found in the antennae of these insects, such as "circumfila," "loops," miniature horseshoe forms, sinuous threads forming "an enclosing net-work suggestive of the bed-spring aerial," etc.

It was from the antennae of insects that the aerials of radio-telegraphy borrowed their name, and now it almost looks as if we were going to find out that insects have for ages been practising some kind of radio communication, probably incomparably more perfect than ours, while proud, boastful man was confined in his communications to the limited reach of his voice and ears and the very moderate speed-rate of his legs.

But having at last found out how to do it, after a fashion, we now, in accordance with our self-conceited nature, proclaim aloud, to the (presumably sarcastic) sun, moon, and stars that the genius of man has conquered nature, and will soon lay bare her innermost secrets!

It is true that we do deserve great credit—viewed from our own standpoint. But imagine a magnified gall midge, with a set of aerials not only inimitable but incomprehensible to us, invited as a supposedly rustic guest, to tell what he thought of one of our radio concerts.

The astonishing power of intercommunication possessed by insects has always been a subject full of mystery for naturalists; but it may be that light will now begin to dawn upon it, since we are getting into a corner of their radio field, though evidently away off on the other side from them.

CASTORIA
for Infants and Children.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent, or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent, or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy and retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse. It causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

The signature of Chas. H. Fletcher guarantees genuine Castoria

Physicians Recommend Castoria.

"I have used your Castoria in cases of colic in children and have found it the best medicine of its kind on the market."
J. E. SIMPSON, M. D., Chicago, Ill.

"Castoria is good for children and I frequently prescribe it, and always obtain the desired result."
F. CHARLES BLATTNER, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.

"A medicine so valuable and beneficial for children as your Castoria is deserves the highest praise. I find it in use everywhere."
J. S. ALEXANDER, M. D., Omaha, Neb.

"I have prescribed Castoria to families for several years. It is all right. Everybody like it, for children will take it without any trouble."
C. A. WILSON, M. D., St. Louis, Mo.

"Have used your Castoria on various occasions in suitable cases and have found it a palatable and efficient laxative, especially in the various diseases of childhood."
CHAS. EDWARD GARDINER, M. D., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Your Castoria is a splendid remedy for children, known the world over. I use it in my practice and have no hesitancy in recommending it for the complaints of infants and children."
J. A. BOARMAN, M. D., Kansas City, Mo.

Exchange Fluctuations

Asia Banking Corporation

July 7, 1922

Spot and forward bar silver were each down ½d. in London yesterday.

The New York price declined to 71 cents, and the London-New York cross rate to 445.

The official Sterling rate here this morning was dropped to 3-6, the Gold Dollar rate to 77¾, the Yen rate raised to 61½, and the other rates changed in proportion.

The market from the opening was weak and became more so as the day advanced.

In the early part of the morning some business in Sterling was done at 3-6¼, and in Gold Dollars at 78½.

As, however, there were strong buyers at these quotations, rates eased off until at the Tiffin interval there were no sellers of Sterling at better than 3-5⅞, and in Gold Dollars a 77¾, the market being very weak indeed.

In the afternoon, the official Sterling rate was further dropped to 3s. 5½d., the Gold Dollar rate to 77, and the other rates changed in proportion. After the drop, business in Sterling was done as low as 3s. 5⅜d., and in Gold Dollars at 77¾. However, banks were good sellers at these rates and the market therefore turned steady, closing with sellers of Sterling at 3s. 6d. for all deliveries up to September, and of Gold Dollars at 78.

Owing to delays in cable service, no advices have been received from London as to the silver market there.

New York report their market as easy, with sellers at the official quotation.
